INTRODUCTION.

ON the 30th of June, 1635, Henry Collins, a young man 29 years of age, left London, England, for America with his wife, Ann, one year his senior, and three children, the eldest of whom was only 5 years of age, and settled in Lynn, Mass. Either on the way over or soon after their arrival in this country, there was born to this young couple another son, making four children in all. The three sons of Mr. Collins married and reared large families, and the descendants of this pioneer ancestor have been numerous and are widely scattered throughout the Northern States.

On the 19th day of August, 1899, seventy persons of the Brookfield, N. Y., contingent of the Collins family, tracing their lineage either by descent or marriage, sat around the festive board at Madison Lake, N. Y., to celebrate their first re-union held in memory of their common ancestors, Henry Collins, of Lynn, and his loving wife, Ann, who came to this country 265 years ago, that we, their descendants, might enjoy the political and religious liberty denied to them in their old English homes. Before separating a permanent organization of those present was perfected by selecting the following officers for the ensuing year: President and Historian, George K. Collins, of Syracuse, N. Y.; Vice President, Charles Collins, of South Hamilton, N. Y.; Secretary, Clarence E. Holmes, of South Hamilton, N. Y.; Treasurer, Henry H. Collins, of East Hamilton, N. Y.; Executive Committee, Mr. and Mrs. C. Frank Foster, and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Newton, of Earlville, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collins, of South Hamilton, N. Y.

The time and place for the next re-union was fixed for the third Saturday in August, 1900, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fisk in the village of North Brookfield, N. Y.

As a result of this first family re-union the following pages containing a brief record of some of the Quaker descendants of Hezekiah and John Collins, two of the sons of John and Susannah Collins, of Charlestown, R. I., are offered by the writer in partial fulfillment of the duties involved upon him by virtue of the office to which he was elected on that occasion.

In closing this brief introduction, the writer is pleased to acknowledge his indebtedness to all members of the family for uniform kindness and willingness to contribute information necessary to the compilation of this brief sketch, and the writer especially desires to mention the following as materially assisting him in the work: Mrs. Charles Fisk, of North Brookfield, N. Y., LeRoy Larkin, of East Hamilton, N. Y., Mrs. Ora M. Rhodes, of Poolville, N. Y., Beriah H. Crumb, of Hamilton, N. Y., Charles Collins, Jerome Holmes and Clarence E. Holmes, of South Hamilton, N. Y., Martin W. Collins, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Isaac B. Collins, of Norwich, N. Y., Mrs. Jane F. Nye, of Hope Valley, R. I.,

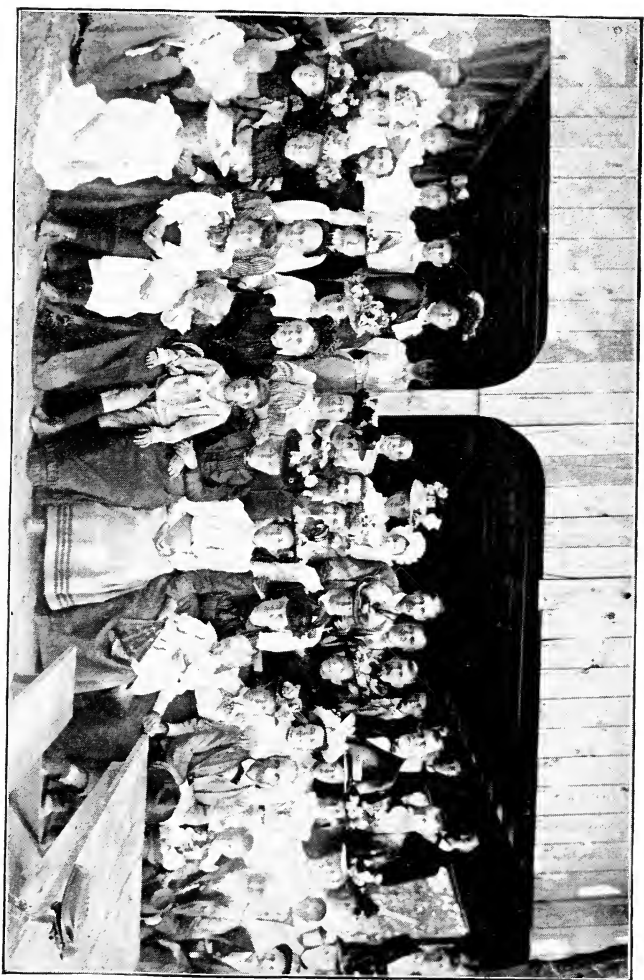

Mrs. Louisa Arzelia York, of North Brookfield, N. Y., George E. Collins, of Randallsville, N. Y., Miss Lillis A. Newton, of Elgin, Ill., Hon. Andrew Perry Collins, of Salina, Kansas, Lodowick C. York, of Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Louisa Teft Gilbert, of Elgin, Ill.

Dated, Syracuse, N. Y., June 30th, 1900.

FIRST COLLINS RE-UNION.

Madison Lake, N. Y., August 19, 1899.

COLLINS FAMILY.

HENRY COLLINS, Starchmaker, born in England in 1606, came from London in the Ship "Abigail" June 30, 1635, with his wife, Ann, born 1605, four children and five servants, and settled on Essex street in Lynn, Mass., where he remained until his decease, February 20, 1687, age 81 years.

CHILDREN :

- 2 Henry, Jr., born 1630, married, and had six children recorded in Lynn.
- 3 John, born 1632, married Abigail Johnson, of Lynn, Mass.
- 4 Margery, born 1633. Nothing known of her.
- 5 Joseph, born 1635. He may have been born on the way over; married, and had seven children recorded in Lynn.

In Hutton's Original List, &c., page 97, and in Drake's Researches, &c., page 35, appears the following :

"Vltio Junij, 1635. Aboard the Abigail, Robert Hackwell Mr p cert from the Minister of Stepney pish of their conformitie: l that they are no substedy men.

The following is taken from Newhalls' History of Lynn, Mass. :

Page 151—"Henry Collins was a starchmaker and lived in Essex street. He embarked in the Abigail, of London, 30 June, 1635. In 1639 he was a member of the Salem Court. He was born in 1606, and was buried 20 February 1687, at the age of 81. His wife, Ann, was born in 1605. His children were Henry, born 1630; John, born 1632; Margery, born 1633; and Joseph, born 1635, and his descendants remain."

Page 171—"1637—A town meeting was held this year in which Daniel Howe, Richard Walker and Henry Collins were chosen a committie to divide the lands, or as it was expressed in the records: 'To lay out ffarmes.' The land was laid out in those parts of the town best adapted for cultivation, and the wood lands were reserved as common property, called the 'Town Common', and was not divided until sixty-nine years afterwards."

In a list of names, about one hundred in number, recorded in the town records in the year 1638, which follows the above extract, appears the following: "Henry Collins up-land and meadow 80 acres and ten." The ten acres was a separate allotment, and was undoubtedly his village or town lot where he resided.

Other references to the name of Henry Collins in the public records of Lynn show that he was a man of importance in that community, was frequently called upon to perform duties of public trust and confidence, and sometimes acted as an advocate in court trials.

A. Chalkley Collins of Great Barrington, Mass., in a letter dated Aug. 16, 1900, says: "Henry Collins belonged to the Parish of Stepney in the eastern part of the present city of London and worshiped in the old Parish Church at that place. This Parish Church of Stepney, dedicated to Saint Dunstan, is the oldest in East London, and one of the oldest in all London. Before Dunstan re-built the church in the tenth century there was a Saxon church there dedicated to all saints. The present church was built in the time of Edward IV, 1471-1483, a few relics of the previous church being preserved. According to the church records several of the children of Henry Collins were baptized in this church, among whom was his son John (our ancestor) at the age of eight days on January 22, 1631. Henry's place of abode is recorded in this record as Tatcliff Highway, and his business that of a starchmaker. His wife, Ann, died at Lynn, Mass., probably in 1690, as her will dated in 1690 was probated in that year."

He left twelve children, several of whom were quite young. A son, Samuel, had a good trade of a gunsmith."

Page 291—"The first monthly meeting of the Society of Friends in Lynn was held at the house of Samuel Collins on the 18th of July, 1690. There were but five Lynn men present."

John Collins, Sr., was one of six persons who May 22, 1710, purchased 3,000 acres of wild land in what is now the northeastern part of the town of Hopkinton, R. I. He was a Quaker. Of Susannah Daggett, his wife, Irish, in his history of Richmond, R. I., tells this story: (page 92) "When a small child she was taken to the wigwam of an Indian chief by his squaw who found her lost in the woods. Late at night the chief returned home and told the squaw of a plan adopted to exterminate the whites. She cautioned him saying there is a little pale face sleeping in a bed of skins in the wigwam. The chief then told her the child must die, to which she remonstrated, saying that she had promised to take her home in the morning. The chief passing a firebrand over the face of Susannah and observing no signs of consciousness spared her life and she was able afterwards to give her friends timely warning and thwart the plans of the Indians."

IV. John Collins, (John, John, Henry) born March 21, 1716 (O. S.), died Oct. 1, 1778, age 63 years, Quaker Preacher, born in Charlestown, R. I., and afterwards resided in Stonington, Conn., and buried with his wife in the Friends Burial Yard at Hopkinton, R. I. He married March 15, 1744, Mehitable Bowen, born at Rehoboth, Mass., Aug. 22, 1725, daughter of Daniel and Mehitable (Chaffee) Bowen. (Mehitable, Daniel, Richard, Richard, Richard). Their children, first six born in Charlestown, R. I., and the last three in Stonington, Ct., were :

- 50 Abigail, born April 6, 1760.
- 51 Stephen, born Feb. 6, 1763.*
- 52 Ruth, born July 20, 1765.

This John Collins, head of the foregoing family, was a Quaker preacher of great power and influence and ministered over the Friends Church of Richmond, R. I., of which he was one of the first trustees, and afterwards of the church of the same sect situate one mile west of the village of Hopkinton. He and his wife, Mehitable, were married in accordance with the forms of the society of Friends. In the Friends record of their marriage his wife is called Elizabeth, but in all subsequent mentions of her name in the same record she is called Mehitable, the name given her in the record of her birth at Rehoboth, Mass.

In "Westerly and its Witnesses," published in Providence, R. I., in 1878, Frederic Denison, the author, in speaking of John Collins at page 131, says :

"One of the first distinguished speakers in the Hopkinton meeting was John Collins. Concerning him a testimony was issued by the Monthly Meeting in 1780 from which we present an extract: 'He was born in the town then called Westerly (now Charlestown) Dec. 12, 1716, of believing parents, and when almost twenty-four years of age was convinced of the blessed truth and became zealous and circumspect in life and conversation and for truth's sake took up the cross and denied himself of his former pleasures and delights. It was not long after his conviction before his mouth was opened to a public testimony, wherein although for some years he had but few words in meeting, yet his appearance was both acceptable and edifying to Friends, and as he proved himself faithful and diligent in the gift bestowed upon him the Lord was pleased to enlarge it so that he became an able minister of the Gospel.' He was an eminent minister and for many years sat at the head of New England Yearly Meeting. 'He was much engaged and took much pains in endeavoring to have the Africans or negroes freed from slavery and often testified against that wicked practice.' He died in Stonington, Conn., Oct. 1, 1778. His name is a precious legacy to Friends."

*Among the first colonists who came to Brookfield for settlement in 1791 or 2, probably the latter date, was Stephen Collins, who is supposed to be Stephen Collins, (51) born February 6, 1763. In Mason's history of Chenango and Madison county, page 527, appears the following: "Stephen Collins settled on Beaver Creek about one and one-half miles south of Clarksville where widow Wheeler York now lives, and where he soon after coming to Brookfield built a grist mill which he sold at an early date to Daniel White from whom it was long known as White's mill. Mr. Collins after selling the mill property removed to the hill on the same farm and continued to reside there until his death; he and his two wives were buried on this farm. His daughter, Nancy, who married Ellis Morgan, both of whom died in town, was the only one of his children who remained here." The following is the inscription upon the tombstones at the graves of Mr. Collins and that of his two wives, which are in an enclosed but badly neglected private burial yard on the farm upon which he in life resided and where he died: "In Memory of Stephen Collins, Died Oct. 7, A. D. 1834, age 72 years." "Edith, wife of Stephen Collins, Died April 15th, A. D. 1813, age 51 years." "Chlotilda, wife of Stephen Collins, Died July 24, A. D. 1840, age 63 years."

In the last Will of Chlotilda Collins, the last wife of Stephen Collins, recorded and probated in Madison County, she mentions her son, Russel S. Kendall, and her four step-sons, Benjamin, Stephen, Jr., John B. and Arnold Collins, sons of "my husband Stephen Collins."

V. Joseph Collins, (Hezekiah, John, John, Henry) born June 18, 1738, at S. Kingston, R. I., died at Hopkinton, R. I., Sept. 26, 1827, (Quaker) married at Hopkinton, March 8, 1764, Bathsheba Hoxie, daughter of Solomon and Mary Hoxie, born July 14, 1740, and died January 27, 1823. William settled first in Albany County, then in Oneida County near Utica, and finally in Smyrna, Chenango County, N. Y., where he died. Beriah, Mary and Peter remained in Rhode Island, and Joshua moved to the town of Pomfret in the State of Connecticut. The entire family were Quakers and affiliated with that sect, and most of the family records are preserved by its descendants in the old way by the use of numeral even to this day.

Frederic Denison, in Westerly and its Witnesses, at page 132, speaking of John Wilbur, says :

"Among the last honored ministers of this meeting was the universally beloved John Wilbur. He was born in Hopkinton, July 7, 1774. While a young man he was often engaged successfully in teaching school.

He was a youth of exemplary deportment and religiously inclined from early life. In 1793 he was married to Lydia Collins. He first appeared in the ministry in the thirty-sixth year of his age, though he was appointed an elder in 1798. In 1812 he was officially acknowledged by monthly and quarterly meetings. In 1824-5 he traveled through various parts of New England, and in 1827 visited the State of New York. From 1831 to 1833 he visited and spoke in England. From 1840 to 1844, and indeed ever after, he bore testimony against the so-called Gurney schism. In 1852-3 he traveled in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and New York. A second tour was made to England in 1853-4. Ardently attached to the principles of the Society of Friends, his life was one of incessant labor, and his ministry was of much power though insufficient to stay the tide of innovation upon the faith of Fox and Barclay. He had power also with his pen and his correspondence was extensive. Through his influence the Hopkinton meeting was divided and his followers were called Wilburites. The Gurneyites, being in the majority, retained the meeting house at Hopkinton, its properties and records, but the dissenters soon built another near the old; this was in 1848.

"The good and faithful John Wilbur, honored by all who knew him, as mature in virtues as in years, died May 1, 1856, and was buried in the Friends graveyard in Hopkinton."

Joseph Collins is said to have been a man of unusual strength and power, standing 6 feet and 7 inches in his stockings. He died in Brookfield, as also did his two eldest sons, Joseph, Jr., and Beriah, the former at the age of 91 years and the latter at 87. Sheffield was scalded to death in the potashery at Clarksville by falling into a kettle of boiling potash: the other sons died out of Brookfield, the adopted home of their parents.

Mrs. L. M. Hammond, in her History of Madison County published in 1872, says:

"In the west part of the town of Brookfield (directly west of Clarksville) a number of Quakers settled, prominent among whom were: Joseph Collins, Jr., Solomon and Hezekiah Collins, Mr. Sheffield, Gideon and Thomas Kenyon and James Larkin. The three sons of Joseph Collins, Jr.—Job, Peter and Joshua—and Albert Button (who married Mary Collins, a daughter of Joseph Collins, Jr.,) built up a place called Moscow, now DeLancy. The Collins brothers were saddlers and harness makers. Peter Collins built a tavern, Albert Button built a store, and Job and Joshua Collins had a number of shops for the several trades of harness and saddle making, and wagon making and blacksmithing. For about ten years a considerable business was done at Moscow; but near the year 1830 these proprietors desiring a location where better facilities in the form of water power and easier access to large business centers were offered, sold out, moved away and the abandoned village soon decayed. Some of the best of the deserted buildings have been converted into farm houses upon the very good farms in the neighborhood.

"The Quakers had a large society in this locality which was connected with that of the town of Madison. For many years their meetings were held at the house of Thomas Kenyon. About 1820 their house of worship was built and was well filled with worshippers at all their meetings for about twenty-five years. Death then began to decimate the aged and faithful, the children married 'out of the meeting' or moved away, the leaders became so few that the meetings grew fewer and farther between, and finally the house was closed. Today the dilapidated building upon Quaker Hill, once the center of attraction to a large number of devoted faithful hearts, where the sunlight of the bright Sabbath morning once beamed through the lattice and doorway upon an exquisitely neat and orderly interior, presents naught to the eye exteriorly or interiorly but broken windows, rotting casements, decaying walls and gathering dust and cobwebs. The atmosphere of the whole location seems pregnant with loneliness. The hill is one of the highest in this hilly region: far around are to be seen broad grazing farms dotted with herds of cattle and now and then an isolated barn, but very few farm houses are in view. Between the church and the highway is the graveyard—not all neglected, but quiet and silent as seems suited to the undemonstrative habits when in life of those whose forms are reposing beneath the unostentatious marble headstones.

"The large farms in this vicinity are owned by Messrs. Brand, Collins, Hoxie and Stanbro. Three of the original Quaker families: Hoxie Collins, Joseph Collins 3d, and Beriah Collins, still reside in town."

All of the three last named persons are now deceased.

Isaac B. Collins in a letter dated Dec. 7, 1899, says :

"My parents in the spring of 1800 with their two daughters, the eldest less than four years old, immigrated to Rensselaerville (Manor of Rensselaerwick) in Albany county, N. Y. Remaining at that place fifteen years, there were born to them two more daughters and four sons. In the spring of 1815 they removed to what was then called Caprons' Cotton Mills near the village of New Hartford in Oneida County, N. Y., where I was born the following December. After residing at the latter place one year they moved to a farm lying between the village of New Hartford and Utica and there their youngest son was born in Feb., 1819. The first summer at that place—that of 1816—was distinguished as the coldest ever known in those parts. In the spring of 1819 the family again moved to another farm two and one-half miles west of New Hartford village, and three years afterwards, in the spring of 1822, we found ourselves on a hill farm in the town of Smyrna, Chenango County, where my parents remained until their decease."

The following is taken from a more extended biographical sketch printed in the excellent Centennial history of Onondaga county by Gen. Dwight H. Bruce :

"Dr. John Collins was the fifth child in a family of eleven children, nine of whom arrived at maturity, who were born unto John Collins and Lucy Burdick, his wife, of Brookfield. His boyhood was spent on the farm of his father in Brookfield and was subject to all the hardships and deprivations of pioneer life, yet with indomitable pluck and perseverance he was able to acquire an excellent education for his time and far above the average of the community in which he lived. Like many other young men he taught school winters to obtain the means to meet expenses of a higher education. He was graduated from Hamilton Academy, and subsequently from Castleton, Vermont, Medical College in 1829, and settled in Spafford, Onondaga County, N. Y., in 1830, where he acquired a wide professional business which continued without intermission down to the time of his decease, August 15, 1853. He was one of the leading physicians of the county during his career and a prominent member of the Onondaga County Medical Society. He was a fine botanist, knew the medical properties of almost all varieties of plants, and while he was an old school practitioner by education and precept he was ever ready to try and test the efficacy of new remedies or new modes of practice commending themselves to his good judgment and quick perception. During the latter part of his professional career the principles of Hahnemann having found favor with some of his patients he was quick to discover what was good in this mode of practice and was able to administer to those who were desirous of that mode of treatment. There being no lawyers residing within the field of his labors he was often called upon by his clientage to serve them in the preparation of their deeds, bonds, mortgages, contracts, leases and wills, which his superior education had so well fitted him for drafting. He was never an aspirant for office and was loth to accept public preferment when offered, yet for several years he was school inspector and superintendent, and for many years postmaster, because the first was agreeable to his tastes and the latter involved no part of his personal attention, the duties being performed by his wife. He was one of the founders of the Methodist Episcopal church at Spafford, was one of the first to espouse the cause of temperance, and generally supported and advocated any good and worthy cause which he believed would advance the moral interest and material welfare of his townspeople. Dr. Collins at an early day joined the Onondaga County Medical Society and was generally respected by his fellow practitioners for his social and professional attainments. After a lapse of nearly half a century his name is still treasured in nearly every household embraced within the scope of his labors with affectionate regard. He married Mary Ann, daughter of Captain Asahel Roundy and sister of Prof. Charles O. Roundy, the first principal of the Syracuse High School; she survives and resides in Syracuse, N. Y. They had eight children, of whom two are living: Capt. George K. Collins, a prominent lawyer in practice at Syracuse, who served as Captain in the 149th N. Y. Vols. during the War of the Rebellion, and Frank Collins, both of Syracuse, N. Y.

Captain Collins was mustered into the service of the United States Sept. 18, 1862, as First Lieutenant in Co. I, 149th Regt. N. Y. Vol. Inf., in the war of 1861, served for a period of nearly two years and was brevetted Captain at the close of the war for meritorious services. He participated in all the battles, skirmishes and marches of the regiment both in the Army of the Potomac and the Army of the Cumberland up to the time of his discharge, excepting the battle of Ringgold, from which he was prevented by injuries received in battle a few days previous. Among the engagements and campaigns in which he saw service were Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Wauhatchie and Lookout Mountain. He was twice wounded, first at Chancellorsville and again at Lookout Mountain; the latter was the occasion of his discharge, which occurred April 24, 1864. He was admitted to the bar of the state of New York soon after his discharge from the Army of the United States, and soon after to the District Court of the United States and the Department of the Interior, and is now engaged in active practice of his profession at Syracuse, N. Y. He is Past Commander of Root Post, G. A. R.; Past President of Central N. Y. Microscopical Club; Member of the National Microscopical Society; for fifteen or sixteen years he was Grand Treasurer of the Royal Arcanum for the state of New York; he is a Companion of the Loyal Legion, New York Commandery; he is the author of the history of his regiment, entitled, "Memoirs of the 149th Regt. N. Y. Vol. Inf., 3d Brig., 2 Div., 12th and 20th A. C.;" is a member of Central New York Genealogical Society, and a member of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Captain Collins' father, who was a physician and surgeon, died while residing at Spafford, a small country village, when the subject of this sketch was sixteen years of age and a country boy living on a farm. A few months afterward Captain Collins, accompanied by his mother and two infant brothers, moved to the city of Syracuse and commenced the struggle of life under very discouraging circumstances, working alternately at whatever he could find to do and going to school until the spring of 1858 when he was graduated from the Syracuse High school, then considered an excellent educational institution. He then entered the law office of the well-known firm of D. and D. F. Gott at Syracuse, as a student, but his labors were soon interrupted by the event of the Civil War and his admission to the bar was delayed until about 1866. Whatever success the Captain may have achieved at the bar, or otherwise, he owes to himself and the indomitable pluck and perseverance inherited from an excellent father and mother. He has never professed religion in the general accepted interpretation of that term, still he has generally attended the M. E. church, of which his parents were members, and among other church offices was at one time Superintendent of the Sabbath school connected with that society. In habits of mind in relation to religious subjects Captain Collins has a strong penchant to many of the characteristic tenets believed in and adhered to by his Quaker ancestors, for whom he cherishes a devout attachment.
